

Atlatls-in-Action – Elmira, NY

5-7 June 2015

The late spring gathering in the hollow along the esker at Tom Goble's house was nearly absent of Spring Peepers at night and only a few Green Frogs in the day, and maybe just one Gray Treefrog was heard. Gray Catbirds, Wood Thrush, Brown Thrasher, American Redstarts and a Carolina Wren kept the air full of sounds though. A few fireflies were about and the temperatures were mild and the air was calm except for some breeze on Sunday. We were also entertained through a looking glass on Saturday by a couple of inch-worm moths. One was the White-banded Toothed Carpet (Epirrhoe alternata) that feeds on bedstraws and the other paler one was the White Pine Angle (Semiothisa pinistrobata). There were also several IO Moths, Automeris io, on the wing. In summary, a couple dozen throwers pounded away on the Mastodon Open down by the pond or on the lower course which was used for ISACs, World Atlatl Day and the NYAA competitions.
